STANDARD MINE IS CLOSED DOWN

Sunday at 6 p. m. the Standard mine, mill and cyanide plant was shut down, and for how long no one is able to say. The property was shut down by telegraphic orders from New York, and is the result of the employees refusing to accept a cut in wages. The same evening the unions held a joint meeting and discussed the situation and reaffirmed their intention to stand by their colors. While this shutdown has thrown a pall upon Bodie for the present, it is still hoped that the forthcoming meeting of the stockholders will result in the overthrow of the Lassen crowd and the speedy resumption of work. A number of miners have left and many others are preparing to do so. A number of watermen are employed around the works to comply with the insurance regulations.—Bridgeport Chronicle.

THANKSGIVING IN FINE ORE BODY

The work in the Thanksgiving mine at the 350-foot level is rapidly proving that the best pay along the great contact vein in Manhattan will be found at depth. This drift is now over 200 feet in length and every foot of this distance is in ore as good as that which made the Mohawk-Jumbo lease at Goldfield such a phenomenal dividend payer.

The Thanksgiving ledge as shown by these lower workings varies in width from three to more than five feet and the rock will average better than $50 to the ton, with frequent shoots of ore that carries gold into the fancy figures.

With no untoward circumstances, the Thanksgiving promises now to be the first dividend payer in this district. Under forced draft, as usually worked, and with ready access to adequate milling facilities, the mine could produce enough this year to begin paying profits to the stockholders.

Last Saturday the vein exposed in the east drift at the lower level, showed a decided change in character. Careful average samples of the ledge, with all free gold specimen rock excluded, gave returns of over $50 in gold.

The last round of shots on Saturday broke into a shoot of high grade, and the last few days have seen hoisted some of the finest ore ever taken from this mine, famous for its high grade.

The company, while planning to put in a mill to handle Thanksgiving ore exclusively, will continue the development of the mine on the lower levels.

Soon after the first of next month work will begin on sinking the shaft to the 450-foot level.

The trend of the ledge northeast-erly from the shaft indicates that it will pass from Thanksgiving territory into the Forked Stick estate.—Manhattan Mail.

EASTERNERS BUY GOLD RUN PLACERS

An important mining deal was closed here today when W. C. Howard and Eastern associates acquired title to the Gold Run placer mines from H. Warren. These placers are situated about twelve miles south of Golconda and have been worked with much success for a number of years by the hydraulic process. These mines are right in the heart of the Gold Run basin and there is a large acreage of virgin ground yet to be worked; in fact, the claims have only been worked in spots and wherever the water was utilized rich cleanups have been made.

It is the intention of the new owners to put ten men to work immediately and the principal development will be an 800-foot tunnel to bedrock. When the rush of water comes in the spring the giants will be started and the gravel made to give up its precious contents.

The working of these placers means a great deal to the Gold Run district as, together with the development work already going on, it will have a tendency to stimulate mining throughout the camp.—Humboldt Star.

CAPITALISTS BUY MONTEZUMA MINE

Work is being diligently prosecuted in a number of properties in the old camp of Montezuma, situated some eleven miles west of town. Recent arrivals say that the showings in a number of new places where the work is being prosecuted the ore runs high in silver and lead values. The old Montezuma mine is about to be taken over by a French syndicate. Forty years ago this mine was a producer of high grade that paid the expense of mining and other charges, even when it had to be hauled by ox team to Austin, 150 miles distant. Then the owners of the ground put up a small stamp mill and later on a smelter. Differences between Boston owners of the property closed the plant, which has laid in the quietness of the desert for over twenty-five years. The owners, however, secured patents on all their ground and the claims have never gone to tax sale. That is business, but not mining.

With the immense strides made in all of the country adjacent to Goldfield in the past few years, attention has been called to the Rip Van Winkle, which is almost in sight of Goldfield, and real live ones have become interested in an effort to wake the old fellow up from his long slumber, and it looks as though it would be effective. The Nevada Northern railway, which is bound to be extended to Goldfield from Ely, in order to get some of the silicious ores from this camp, will also be after the wet ores of Montezuma, and a spur will be extended there undoubtedly. That big smelter at Ely will need all the ore it can find to keep it going.—Goldfield Tribune.

SIGN CONTRACT TO BUILD SMELTER

Superintendent John M. Taylor of the Santa Barbara-Searchlight Mining Company, informs the Bulletin that his company has signed a contract for a 100-ton smelter. When seen, Mr. Taylor declared that he was so busy that it was hard for him to find time to eat or sleep. "We have signed a contract," he said, "with John S. Loder of Reno for one of his patent gas smelters, the same to be delivered within 90 days. The total cost of the plant will be close to $100,000."

The smelter will be erected right at our Rich Hill mine at Nob Hill, and I am now building roads for the hauling in of the ore. The smelter will be the first of its kind to be erected in Nevada and I am confident that it will be a great success of itself and likewise a great benefit to the district. Following our order was one from W. A. Clark for a 600-ton plant, and in all Mr. Loder has sixty different orders to fill. I am showing my own confidence by offering to take hold of any property that has a showing.—Searchlight Bulletin.
